HAYES JONES ELECTED TO BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Olympic games gold medal winner, Hayes Jones, was elected to the Alumni Association's Board of Directors at the annual meeting held during Alumni Day festivities in May.

Mr. Jones, who was graduated from Eastern in 1961, won a gold medal in the high hurdles at the 1964 Olympics. He is a sales representative for American Airlines in Detroit and serves as a member of Detroit's Youth Employment Project and the Mayor's Technical Advisory Committee. Mr. Jones is chairman of the Women's Track and Field Association for the state and is general chairman of the Northern Oakland Girl Scout Community Appeal.

In addition to winning an Olympic gold medal, Mr. Jones was the National AAU indoor champion hurdler in 1958, 1960-64, the national AAU outdoor champion in 1958, 1960, 1961, 1963 and 1964 and a member of the U.S. team in competition against the U.S.S.R. six times.

The other four seats open on the Board of Directors were won by incumbents, Alice J. Beal, '27, emeritus associate professor of Roosevelt School; C. Eugene Beatty, '34, director of Community Schools in Ypsilanti and principal of Ypsilanti's Central School; Leslie A. Butler, '06, of Ann Arbor, formerly director of Eastern's laboratory schools and placement service, and Elven E. Duvall, '47, superintendent of schools in Jackson.

Dean Explains Admission Policy

*By Ralph Gilden, Dean
Admissions and Financial Aids*

The admissions policy of Eastern Michigan University has become a widely-discussed issue recently among alumni. Controversial articles have received wide distribution and raised honest questions among graduates interested in their alma mater.

Many former students, who have met me at one time or another in my 25 years with Eastern, have asked me questions directly. Mr. John Bruce tells me that in his many meetings with alumni, questions have been put to him. Others report a similar interest.

Many of the questions arise from an article carried in a Detroit metropolitan newspaper, which implied that Eastern had adopted a "bottomless admissions policy," and that the school had become a haven for "underachievers."

It gives me great pleasure to take this opportunity to tell the Alumni of Eastern Michigan University that nothing could be further from the truth.

The quality of the student body at Eastern Michigan University is the highest in the history of this fine institution, which has always been proud of its students and its program.

Three-fourths of the students now enrolled at Eastern ranked in the upper one-fourth of their high school graduating classes.

Ninety per cent of them were in the upper half of their high school class.

Their scores on standardized tests place them, on the average, at the median level of all college students in the United States, which indicates to me that they rank well above average in ability for college-age young people.

Anyone who deals with these fine young people, as I do day by day, knows that it is a gross indignity to refer to them as "underachievers." They perform well in classes and all studies.

Their excellent work is reported not only by the faculty, but is attested to by employers. Eastern continues to be a prime source of teachers, sought for by the best school systems in the state and throughout the nation. Nothing has occurred that in any way detracts from a reputation carefully built over more than a century for excellence in teacher education.

In addition, graduates from our other colleges—business, arts and sciences, the graduate school—are obtaining premium jobs in business and industry and academic institutions.

Anyone who has watched the fine work of our students in extracurricular activities—Campus Service Corps, newspaper, yearbook and Concepts magazine, in a variety of impressive activities too long to include here—cannot help but be personally offended by a description of these students as "underachievers."

It is a fact that Eastern takes a special interest in the student who has an intense desire to attend college but whose work in high school has not made him qualified beyond any question of a doubt.

We operated this summer an "Upward-Bound" project, designed to give culturally deprived children an opportunity to develop new interests and realize their native potential. We hope very much that these youngsters will develop to the point where they may some day qualify to enter Eastern Michigan University.

We also select students who wish to attend Eastern, but who may have a marginal academic record, and enable them to attend a special summer session. If they succeed in this summer session, they are eligible to enroll at Eastern in the fall semester.

Last summer, 249 attended the summer session and 213 enrolled in school in the fall. Some were not able to earn successful records, but others actually earned a place on the honor roll.

These are programs that I commend and support. I am proud to have Eastern recognized as an opportunity school, where a student who might be considered marginal has a chance to prove himself, and objective opportunity to succeed.

These programs in no way dilute the quality of Eastern's academic program. All students must earn satisfactory records or leave the University.

At the other end of the academic scale, Eastern is making a real—and successful—attempt to attract the superior students. We have a program aimed at students who have achieved a high school point average of 3.6 or higher, or have been valedictorians or salutatorians of their classes.

These students of high potential are given honors scholarships, and we hope to expand this program as rapidly as funds allow.

I have always been proud of Eastern Michigan University, its faculty and students. I have never been prouder than now. There has never been more reason to be proud.

The office of Admissions and Financial Aids is always open to alumni and friends of Eastern Michigan University. If you visit the campus, please call on us with your questions. We would also be happy to reply to mailed questions or to meet with you.

Chemistry Department Wins Recognition

*By Ralph Chapman
(University News Editor)*

Clark Ghael Spike, born and raised in Ypsilanti, does not need to seek personal recognition. The entry after his name in "Who's Who In America" attests to that.

But for two years he has been fighting for recognition of a different sort—recognition of the excellence of the chemistry department which he heads at Eastern Michigan University.

First step was an application to the American Chemical Society. This is the largest organization in the world devoted to a single science and its approval is a feather in the cap of any university.

Back came what Dr. Spike describes as "a mound of forms." He had to answer questions and furnish information on just about everything except the color of his neckties. Then he was asked to go to Pittsburgh for a meeting with members of the Society's Committee on Professional Training.

After that, he just waited.

Next step was taken last October when Dr. Harry G. Day, professor of chemistry at the University of Indiana, came to Eastern. He talked at length with University President Harold E. Sponberg, Dr. Spike and many others. He peered into test tubes and retorts and reviewed the chemistry library. Then he went away.

And Dr. Spike waited another seven months.

In May, Dr. Sponberg received a letter from J. H. Howard, secretary of the Committee. It ran on for a page and a half of single-spaced typing but only one sentence was really important. It read:

"I am pleased to advise you of the decision of the Committee to include the name of your institution on the list of approved schools of the American Chemical Society."

Since one of the objects of the Society is promotion of "high standards of professional ethics, education, and attainments," this was recognition indeed. Its effect will be to enhance the prestige of both the University and its graduates in chemistry.

Dr. Spike's department is now eligible for funds from industry which were not available before. One of the largest chemical companies in the country had already promised support if ACS accreditation was forthcoming. That help will now be received. And there are other sources to be tapped.

Students who complete the rigid educational requirements now are eligible for an ACS certificate. The certificate means a higher starting salary and almost automatic assurance of a tailor-made job.

Dr. Spike says that eight such students received their diplomas at the June 10 Commencement exercises.

Eight Receive Honorary Degrees

Honorary degrees were presented to eight men at ceremonies on campus this past spring. Of these, three are alumni of the University.

Ben G. Wright, an alumnus of the class of 1935, was awarded an honorary Doctor of Letters degree at the Library Dedication program May 12. President and chairman of "This Week," a Sunday magazine supplement distributed by newspapers across the country, Mr. Wright gave the dedication address.

Joseph M. Bertotti, manager of educational relations for General Electric Company and secretary and educational administrator for the General Electric Foundation, and Jay J. Seaver, head of Jay J. Seaver Engineers, Chicago, Ill., received honorary degrees at June commencement.

Mr. Bertotti is nationally recognized for distinguished service in the interpretation of education through General Electric's College Bowl program and the company's television documentaries. He received his bachelor's degree from Eastern.

Mr. Seaver, who is a distinguished engineer, innovator of manufacturing processes and nationally recognized expert in the design of industrial plants and techniques, attended Eastern and was graduated from the University of Michigan.

Others receiving honorary degrees at the Library Dedication program were Dr. Preston E. James, Maxwell professor and chairman of the Department of Geography at Syracuse University and Edmon Low, professor of library science at the University of Michigan. Dr. James gave the John M. Munson Lecture at the Honors Convocation, May 11.

Also receiving honorary degrees at commencement were Dr. Harlan Hatcher, president of the University of Michigan, George P. McCallum Jr., president and chairman of the board of Booth Newspapers, Inc., Detroit, and Michigan's Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken. Dr. Hatcher was the commencement speaker.

Alumni Present Award To Dr. Gerald F. Tape

A Distinguished Alumnus Award was presented to Dr. Gerald F. Tape, who is a member of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, at the Alumni Day program in May.

Dr. Tape was graduated from Eastern in the class of 1935 and earned his master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Michigan.

He served as deputy director of Brookhaven National Laboratory from 1951 until 1962 when he was appointed vice president and, later, president of Associated Universities which operates the facility. First named to the Atomic Energy Commission in 1963 by President Kennedy, Dr. Tape was reappointed by President Johnson to a five-year term ending in 1971.

Before joining the Brookhaven staff, Dr. Tape was an instructor in physics at Cornell University and a member of the staff of the radiation laboratory at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He directed the airborne radar work of that laboratory in Europe during 1944-45.

The award is presented annually to an alumnus who has distinguished himself in an exemplary fashion after graduation. The recipient is selected by the Alumni Association Board of Directors.

Dinner Will Honor Coach George Marshall

Eastern's "Coach of Champions," George Marshall, will be honored at a dinner and program Friday, Oct. 27, at McKenny Union.

A large photograph and bronze bust of the track coach will be unveiled that evening. The photograph will be displayed in Bowen Field House, and the bust will be placed in Warner Gymnasium.

The reception will begin at 5:30 p.m.; dinner will follow at 6:30 p.m. President Harold E. Sponberg will be the speaker. Master of ceremonies will be Gus Howard, a close friend and former classmate of Mr. Marshall.

Mr. Marshall was varsity track and cross country coach from 1942 until June of this year. He earned a life teaching certificate from Eastern in 1925 and a bachelor of science degree from Eastern in 1930. He received his master's degree from the University of Michigan. Mr. Marshall started his teaching career in the Hamtramck public schools in 1925. He was freshman track coach at Eastern from 1928 until 1933, and then after being away from campus for several years, returned as assistant track coach in 1937.

Members of the committee which is planning the event are Ralph Gilden, chairman, Jack Jyleen, Eugene Lucerilli, Warren Watson, Al Hutchins, Frosty Ferzacca, John Bruce and John Fountain.

Proceeds from the dinner will be donated to the George Marshall Scholarship Fund at Eastern.

Outstanding High School Seniors Receive Scholarships

Eastern Michigan University awarded its first President's Scholarships to six outstanding high school graduates this past spring.

The grants included full tuition scholarships and room and board payments for the summer semester and were awarded to the students on the basis of their high school grades. Their purpose, according to Ralph F. Gilden, dean of Admissions and Financial Aids, is to encourage students to begin their college careers at Eastern during the summer.

The students have been granted Regents' Scholarships for the fall semester, and these are renewable each semester.

The six Michigan students who received the first scholarships were Patricia Bragg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bragg, Monroe; Gerald Fioritti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Remo A. Fioritti, Taylor; Toni Sue Horvath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Horvath, Ida; Stephen Mayers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mayers, Gibraltar; Nancy Stephens, daughter of Roy C. Stephens, Westland, and Janice Koengeter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Koengeter, Chelsea.

Women of Eastern Salute:

Mary Weeden Stiver

Eastern alumna Mary Weeden Stiver has been writing poetry most of her life. Two books of her poems have been published. Her poems and prose, too, have appeared in numerous magazines through the years.

Mary and her husband, Lawrence, have lived on a farm near Richmondville N.Y., for more than 20 years, moving there from Detroit in 1943.

"I wrote my first poem at age nine in the fourth grade . . . and it was voted the best poem in the class. I was 13 before I wrote another poem, but thereafter I was writing constantly, poetry and prose. The poems I hid, for I was embarrassed or in the throes of aging over them—for they seemed to reveal my innermost feelings. In prose, I wrote stories of mystery (haunted houses) or essays," Mary says.

She submitted her poetry to Gerald D. Sanders, who was head of the English Department while she was a student at Eastern, and he encouraged her to continue her writing.

She wrote to Prof. Sanders and sent him her poetry after she left college, and it was he, who in 1960, encouraged her to compile a collection of her poems.

"Lonely Hills" was published in 1962. A second volume, "Brief Argument," was published in 1964.

Mary enrolled at Eastern, which was then Michigan State Normal College, in April, 1930. Of her college years she says:

"The next three and one half years were some of the most happy of my life up to that time, for I made many good friends there, especially among the faculty."

She earned her room and board, while she was attending Eastern, by working as a nursemaid for the Daniel T. Quirk family. A favorite aunt gave her the money for her college fees.

She had begun her schooling at the University of Michigan in the fall of 1929, but poor health and a lack of money forced her to withdraw after her first semester.

"I was graduated in June of 1933, and if I had little knowledge of the Depression before, I was to become fully acquainted with it. We were advised to return to our hometowns hopefully to be hired as teachers by school boards whose members knew us," Mary says.

After being home (North Lima, Ohio) a year, Mary was hired to teach second grade. She taught four years and then returned to Eastern to earn her master's degree in special education.

However, her plans were interrupted when she met Lawrence Stiver, and he proposed to her. They were married in March, 1939, and moved to Detroit. They have three sons, James, 27, Robert 23 and Lawrence, 22.

Mary was born Feb. 18, 1909, in Bristol Township in Southern Ohio. Her family moved to Philo, Ohio, when she was four-years-old. From there, the family moved to North Lima, where she lived until she left for college.

"I go on writing still—not as much, nor do I find much energy or interest in trying to market far and wide," she says of her current activities.

MEDITATION ON TIME

By Mary Weeden Stiver

*Here in the country where the dust lies thick on the roadside weeds silence beats against my ears;
between one pulse and another
I hear the grass grow.*

*When the wind lifts and falls,
I watch the small clouds of dust fly up and settle again like nervous birds.
As the silence deepens I think that Time is a frozen stream in a silver pitcher, but it breaks into a million bits of glass
when I blow my breath upon it;
I see it then as a milky river flowing,
flowing forever without beginning or end.
I bathe my feet in it and am already on a long journey.*

EMU Athletic Teams Face Tough Season

By Dennis Hanks
(Sports Information Service)

Will the Hurons of Eastern Michigan University be able to maintain the tremendous momentum generated by the athletic teams of the 1966-67 season? Now is the time to find out. The football team has done some good recruiting, and if the rookies can blend with the veterans into a workable unit, we could have a formidable team. Our schedule is much tougher this season than it has been since the glory days of the middle-fifties when the Hurons were the leaders of the IIAC.

Incoming freshmen such as Mike Smith, All-State halfback from Bay City Central, and Tom Walls, an All-State speedster from South Bend, Ind., will give us the much needed speed. Charles Zane, a rugged 215-pound fullback from Pennsylvania, will also bolster the backfield corps.

Cross country, of course, is always powerful and this season should prove no exception. The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics champion harriers are hoping to successfully defend their crown in Omaha in November.

Captain Jim Oberling will lead the cross country team in its quest for another national title. Returning with Oberling will be Ken Head, John Daniel, Glenn Duke, Chris Abbuhl and Paul Baker. Al Ruffner, an outstanding high school two-miler from Wyandotte Roosevelt, is expected to provide additional strength during the tough dual meet season.

The Huron cage squad will face the toughest schedule in the history of the school with perhaps the best squad ever. Last season, the cagers established a new win mark for the sport with 18 victories against only 7 losses in Coach Jim Dutcher's first year as head coach.

This season, Coach Dutcher has been able to recruit seven of the nine high school players whom he felt would help the Huron cage squad and is mildly optimistic about the coming season even with the demanding schedule. The first basketball game will be Dec. 2 against Michigan Technological University.

The same story holds true for swimming, wrestling and gymnastics. Swim coach Mike Jones, beginning his first season as a Huron head coach has been highly successful in his recruiting. Add this to the fact that not a man has been lost from last season's national fourth place finishers and you come up with a powerhouse.

Wrestling Coach Russ Bush has also had a successful recruiting season which should provide him with the depth needed for the grapplers rugged schedule.

All-American Jim Arnold will be returning to the gymnastics team for his final year of competition as a Huron and Coach Marvin Johnson says, "We'll need him." This season, Johnson will field probably the strongest team ever, even better than last year's team which placed fifth in the nationals. They will face the toughest schedule ever with four Big Ten teams having been added to the schedule.

Fielding tougher teams to meet tougher schedules could very well be the keynote of this season's athletic fortunes.

ANNOUNCING EASTERN'S KEYSTONE CAMPAIGN

THE CHALLENGE OF PROGRESS

Change — in this changing world — is most apparent on the campus of a modern university. Demands for more technical knowledge and skills from an increasingly complex society bring more and more young people to Eastern with an acute awareness of the importance of higher education. The University accepts the challenge of a dramatic and determinative race with technology, expanding population and increased budgetary demands. It stands at the threshold of a decision to be made by all of us which will determine our pace for progress.

Eastern gains status through your accomplishments. In turn, the degree you hold is directly affected by the University's success and possible failures. The relationship is a constant, mutually reflective, lifetime tie. The adequacy of the University's response and the resulting significant transformations in its history from a normal school to a modern, multi-purpose university characterize us all. The greatest challenge, however, is yet to come, and we as alumni can do our part to see that our progress is apace of the times.

Beginning this year, Eastern's Keystone Campaign with a goal of one million dollars will provide an opportunity for participation in the progress of our alma mater. An annual contribution to the fund will have a genuine impact on academic and cultural campus life and provide support for activities within a margin of excellence beyond state appropriations.

The University is not bricks and mortar. We are her strength. Eastern needs your support to maintain and improve her status as a current, growing, dynamic institution.

THE KEYSTONE CAMPAIGN GOAL

An investment of one million dollars in the University's future by alumni, foundations and friends.

What Is A Charitable Remainder Trust?

Did you know that you can give a gift to Eastern, receive a substantial tax reduction and, at the same time, control the asset and receive all income from it during your lifetime?

You may do this by the commitment of an asset now as a definite future contribution, without depriving yourself of the income or use of the asset. To the contrary, you increase your spendable income for future years as a result of the contribution tax deduction.

For example:

Miss Clarke, age 55, resides in a large house inherited from her parents with a present value of $30,000. Miss Clarke gives the property to Eastern Michigan University reserving the right of use during her lifetime. Result: a charitable contribution tax deduction of $16,222.20.

Mr. Smith, age 52, transfers $20,000 in assets to Eastern Michigan University directing that the income be paid to him for his lifetime, to his wife, age 50, for her lifetime surviving him and then that the principal be given to Eastern Michigan University. Result: a charitable contribution tax deduction of $12,170.40.

Mrs. Martin, a widow, age 70, transfers $10,000 in assets to Eastern Michigan University directing that she receive the income for life, her daughter, age 40, for her lifetime surviving Mrs. Martin and that the principal then be given to Eastern Michigan University. Result: a charitable contribution tax deduction of $3,603.

In addition, no estate or inheritance taxes have to be paid on the trust at the time of the donor's death.

New Building Will Double Classroom Space

A new classroom-office building will double the classroom space on campus. The seven-story building is being constructed just north of the new University Library and will be completed in late 1968 or early 1969. Among offices to be located there will be those for the Departments of English Language and Literature, History and Social Sciences and the College of Business. The hourly turnover for the building will be 5,000 students.

The University Board of Regents at their April meeting approved contracts for the construction totaling $5,620,000, a savings of $130,000 over anticipated costs.
